

This I Believe

Randy Swift 3/24/12

I still believe in that line between what's right and wrong
And that hope can still be found in a simple children's song
Like the one that says "This land was made for you and me"
And I still believe the best things, we have in life are free
I still believe your love leads to perfection
And that your grace will guide me through my misdirection
If I stumble and fall, you'll help me through it all
Cause you're the one who watches me.

I believe that I'm alive because you love me
In this whole wide world you placed no one above me
You even came to die, so a sinner such as I could survive, I survived
And even though life's road may bring me pain and sorrow
I know you'll be there through all of my tomorrows
To help me find my way, back to a brighter day
Cause you're the one who watches me, This I believe...

I still believe those words should be on every dollar bill
Regardless of the laws they pass up there on that hill
And "One Nation Under God", that what we'll always be
In spite of all the politics in Washington, D.C.
I still believe that we're a Christian nation
Who sees you as the God of all creation
And I still believe somehow, that every knee will bow
And proclaim you "Lord of Lords and King of Kings".
